Population ageing is one of the key drivers of societal change in Europe. Increasing numbers of people living to a very old age is an achievement of modern science and healthcare. But it brings challenges which necessitate a response. (Commission of the European Communities’ Renewed Social Agenda, 2008)